

Autistic Minds appoint Henry Field as our new CEO

SUMMARY

Autistic Minds appoint Henry Field as our new CEO starting October 28th.

BODY

Autistic Minds are so very excited to announce that we have appointed a new CEO for the charity.

14 years after founding the charity in 2010, our current CEO, Nadine Honeybone, has decided to step down from the CEO role. She says “It’s time for a new chapter for the charity. A new CEO to help grow the impact of this amazing organisation for the autistic and neurodiverse community that we serve. I feel so very proud of what we have already achieved together in what is just the beginning of our journey for real acceptance and inclusion of our community across society. Our team is unique and I am proud of every one of them, past and present, for their contribution to the difference we make. I fully support our new CEO and am excited for the whole team and the future they have together.”

Our new CEO, Henry Field, comes to us with a wealth of experience in equity, inclusion and diversity and is the perfect leader for this role.

Henry will be appointed as CEO of Autistic Minds on 28th October 2024.

QUOTES

Henry says:

“I’m beyond excited to be taking on this role, and thank Nadine and the Trustees for the trust they’ve put in me. Autistic Minds was there for me when I got my ADHD Diagnosis. To be able to use my experience to lead the charity moving forward, and offer the same support to the neurodiverse community, is an honour.”
